

L3Harris Technologies invites you to participate in a facility tour highlighting the recent progress on the Nancy Grace Roman Space Telescope optical telescope assembly. The Roman Space Telescope is a NASA observatory designed to settle essential questions in the areas of dark energy, exoplanets, and infrared astrophysics. The telescope's primary mirror is 2.4 meters in diameter (7.9 feet) and is the same size as the Hubble Space Telescope's primary mirror, but one-fourth the weight. Tour groups will be taken through the L3Harris facility to see the telescope fabrication progress. Light refreshments will be served following the tour. We hope you'll join us!
